

PLOT TO DETHRONE ALFONSO

CAÑALEJAS ACCUSED OF BEING A PARTY TO IT.

He stamps the story as an Untruth, but Anyway It Was at Least Ten Years Ago. Carlist Leader Talks in the Cortes of Hurling a Bomb at Ministers.

SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCH TO THE SUN.

MADRID, Dec. 21. The split which occurred yesterday in the Chamber of Deputies between the Socialists and Republicans, Señor Larroux and his followers opposing Señors Azcarate and Emilio Iglesias in a hot debate on the Cortes of Hurling a Bomb at Ministers, has made a great impression in political circles. The Monarchists are exultant. They believe the rupture will prove a severe blow to republicanism.

The Chamber was crowded to-day in the expectation that the Carlist leader, Vasquez Mella y Candido, would make a sensational speech, and the expectation was not disappointed. When the Barcelona debate was resumed Señor Mella rose and began by saying he did not know whether to speak or to throw a bomb at the Ministerial bench.

Then he fiercely attacked Prime Minister Canalejas, declaring he was a renegade cleric, and with the view to damaging his position alleged that the Premier was cognizant of the secret scheme between the then Prime Minister, Señor Moret, and the Pope by which the throne of Spain was to be offered to Don Carlos on condition that the latter's son, Prince Jaime, marry the Princess of the Asturias, sister of King Alfonso.

Señor Mella ascribed the scheme to Cardinal Cascajares, many politicians agreeing to it, and Señors Palavicino, Silveira and Canalejas being aware of it. Señor Mella intimated that the scheme, which was also supported by the General of the Jesuits, was the outcome of the anxieties of Queen Regent Christina and the royalists to save the monarchy. Señor Mella read letters which, he professed, proved his charge, but they did not convince the Chamber.

It is clear that the object of the alleged scheme was to amalgamate the rival royal houses and displace King Alfonso and his heirs.

Prime Minister Canalejas briefly declared that Señor Mella's assertions regarding him were calumnious untruths, and he was enthusiastically applauded.

The letters read by Señor Mella included a number written by Cardinal Cascajares to Queen Christina, who was then regent, advising her to bring about a change in politics in the Cortes, which would influence the general political life of the country.

The time when the scheme of making Don Carlos King was agitated, was when there were grave fears concerning King Alfonso's health.

Señor Mella in the course of his attack, defied Señor Canalejas to explain his radicalism and declared that he (Mella) preferred any sort of radicalism to ecclesiasticism.

Señor Canalejas read a letter from the secretary of Cardinal Cascajares denying that he had anything to do with the conspiracy.

When the Prime Minister declared that the charges against him were calumnious untruths, Señor Mella cited historical facts which, he said, tended to prove his assertions. He said that if what he had stated was calumny he would turn up his credentials as a Deputy.

The impression at the close of the debate was that neither Canalejas nor Mella had succeeded beyond doubt in proving his affirmations, but it was generally admitted that an injustice had been done the Prime Minister, who had demonstrated that he meant well.

Mella was obviously raking up Canalejas's past, when, as Mella asserted, the present Premier was pro-Clerical. Cardinal Cascajares's scheme was evidently conceived during the regency of Queen Christina.

Cardinal Cascajares died in 1901. The Princess of the Asturias, Alfonso's sister, now dead, was married in 1901. It is evident, therefore, that the period of the plot to dethrone Alfonso, if it ever existed, must have been in the years shortly after the war with the United States.

340 DEAD IN BRITISH MINE.

Explosion Wrecks Hudson Collieries in Lancashire. Situation Hopeless.

SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCH TO THE SUN.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—Between three and four hundred miners were entombed by an explosion in the Hudson collieries at Leigh, Lancashire, this morning. Several were rescued, but the fatalities were heavy. The pit of the mine took fire and the work of rescue was greatly hampered by the havoc wrought by the explosion. Many of the men were in inaccessible parts of the workings.

Five bodies, including that of the assistant manager of the mine, were recovered speedily. All of these men had been asphyxiated.

The rescue parties reported that they saw a number of bodies. Some of them were burned and mutilated. The early rescuers were unable to reach these victims.

A Government inspector accompanied by air helmet parties explored the entrances to five sections of the Pretoria pit this afternoon. He found all the sections had been swept by fire.

The bodies seen had evidently been subjected to terrific force. Some of the dead men had been buried and others suffocated.

The inspector has issued a statement that there is no reasonable hope that any of the entombed miners are living. It is said to-night that they number approximately 340.

MADE BAD COIN IN PRISON.

Federal Grand Jury Indicts Massachusetts Convicts.

BOSTON, Dec. 21. Patrick Hanley, now serving a sentence of twenty-five years at the State Prison as a habitual criminal, and Myra Johnson, a negro convict serving a sentence of five years at the same institution, were indicted to-day by the United States Grand Jury for counterfeiting within the walls of the prison.

The State prison counterfeiting attracted widespread attention when the announcement was made of its discovery last August. Special Treasury Agent Ahearn was detailed to make an investigation after a prisoner had shown to Warden Bridges a counterfeit half dollar which had been offered as a bet at the Saturday afternoon baseball game in the prison yard.

The counterfeiting was found to have been in progress four or five months, and it was thought that about twenty of the spurious coins had found their way outside the prison, probably through the agency of a visitor.

Seventy counterfeit half dollars were found under a mattress in Hanley's cell. In his pocket was found the plaster of paris mould. The metal used was scraps of lead and tin collected in the workshops and fused in an improvised sheet iron furnace covered with fire clay, four inches square, in which the crucible was inserted.

Heat was obtained by taping the wires of the incandescent lamp on the wall.

Hanley was one of the "sawyer gang" that once escaped from the prison by crawling through a small sewer from the yard to the Charles River.

NEW PULLMAN RATES.

A Reduction of $1 for Upper Berths Between New York and Chicago.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21. An upper Pullman berth between New York and Chicago, which now costs $5, can be obtained for $4 after February 1. The Interstate Commerce Commission to-day handed down its formal order requiring the Pullman Company to differentiate in its charges between an upper and a lower berth.

The price of lower berths also is to be lower in many instances. For example, the rate from New York to Jacksonville, Fla., a now $9.50. After February 1 it will be $8. The order requires a horizontal reduction in all upper berth rates. The principle adopted in fixing the new rates is a differential of 20 per cent. between upper and lower berths. It is estimated that the new rates will result in a saving of about $1,500,000 per annum to the travelling public.

COURT SENDS FOR POLICE.

BEFORE PRISONER HEARS MIDNIGHT VERDICT OF GUILTY.

There Were Some Undesirable Looking Citizens in Court and in the Corridors When the Jury Was Ready to Convict Duffy of Robbery. No Row.

Police reserves were called to the Criminal Courts Building last night at the request of Judge Mulqueen. A jury was ready with a verdict about 11 o'clock P. M. and a crowd of the prisoner's friends were in the back seats of the court. The Court thought it would not be wise to bring the prisoner through the corridors into court to hear the verdict with only the court attendants to keep order.

The prisoner, William Duffy, had been on trial since last Saturday. An indictment has been found against Duffy for murder, but he has been on trial for robbery in the first degree, second offence. On February 17 a clerk in a lodging house at 9 Bowery was murdered. Duffy and a pal of his named Murphy, who has since got a life sentence for the murder, were accused of killing the clerk because they thought he had seen them rob a lodger of $9.35. Duffy was tried on the robbery charge because it was thought there was not sufficient evidence against him on the murder charge.

Just before the defence rested about 10:30 o'clock last night and the case was turned over to the jury Judge Mulqueen noticed in the back seats of his court room half a dozen or more young men who some of the court officers told the Judge were "gorillas" from the Bowery and might make trouble if an unsatisfactory verdict to them were brought in.

So Judge Mulqueen thought it would be well to have policemen present when the prisoner was brought in to hear the verdict. One of the court attendants was sent down stairs to telephone Police Headquarters.

Lieut. John Hackett and four other policemen came over from the Elizabeth street police station. Lieut. Hackett remained in the court room and the men who had come with him attended to the corridors.

There wasn't a ripple when the prisoner was arraigned. The jury found him guilty of robbery in the third degree as a first offence. The Judge said the jury had been very lenient. Duffy may get ten years on this judgment. He was accused of robbery in the first degree, second offence, which is good for forty years.

"Will you let me go to my uncle's funeral?" was about all Duffy had to say. "He raised me and he's looking after my little girl."

"I'm afraid I can't," Judge Mulqueen answered.

Duffy was taken to the Tombs to await his sentence on January 5. His friends in the back rows made no demonstration as he was led away. They got up quietly and went outward toward the Bowery in a little silent group.

THE REV. DR. LONG QUILTS.

Baptists to Take Possession of the Park-side Presbyterian Church.

The Parkside Presbyterian Church on Lenox road, Flatbush, where some two years ago the pastor, the Rev. Dr. John D. Long, permitted the Sunday evening auctioning of furniture for the benefit of the poor, was to-day taken possession of by the Baptists. The proposed new Flatbush church has an option on the property and will hold their first service in the church on New Year's Day under the direction of the Rev. George N. Spencer, who will probably be called as pastor.

When the Brooklyn Presbytery refused to countenance Dr. Long's views and the attendance began to dwindle, Dr. Long finally decided to give up the church as an independent venture.

CANT ENHANCE DANAHY'S BODY.

Justice White Denies the Motion Made in Behalf of Spencer Kellogg & Sons.

BUFFALO, Dec. 21. Justice White, who has but two weeks to sit in the Supreme Court here before retiring on account of the age limit, denied a motion this afternoon in the Special Term for the exhuming of the body of Matthew Danahy, late vice-president of the Danahy Packing Company, saying that it was against all his conceptions of law and justice to grant such an order. The order was sought by Spencer Kellogg & Sons, who are being sued for damages by Mrs. Danahy for the death of her husband.

Mrs. Danahy was injured in July, 1909, by a collision between his motor car and a motor truck owned by the Kellogg concern. He died last November of heart trouble, induced, so the widow claims, by the accident. The Kellogg company sought to have an autopsy to determine the cause of death, which the attending physician gave as malignant endocarditis. There is no precedent in this State for the granting of such an order. Justice White allowed the moving party the right to renew the motion "before some other Judge, if you can find one who has not my scruples."

ALL FIGHT AGAINST LODGE.

Democratic Candidate for Senate From Massachusetts Withdraws.

BOSTON, Dec. 21. Col. William A. Gaston late this afternoon announced his withdrawal as a Democratic candidate for the United States Senate. He says in a statement that a large majority of the Democratic members-elect have sent him word that they favored a party caucus and his nomination.

"Since that time," continues Col. Gaston, "owing to differences of opinion among members of the Democratic party as to the wisdom of a party caucus to unite the Democratic strength on a Democratic candidate and owing to the belief of some of the prominent members of the party that the Democrats should encourage the candidacy of some progressive Republican, I have come to the conclusion that under these conditions no Democrat can be elected to that high office. In order to simplify the situation and to cause no embarrassment to the Governor-elect in his campaign against Mr. Lodge I take this opportunity to announce my withdrawal from the senatorial contest."

STARRED AT SCHOOL.

But Max Richman Didn't Tell About It Until Wounded Him to Fall.

Max Richman, who is 19 years old and lives at 536 East 135th street when he isn't attending Public School 143, at 136th street and Brown place, the Bronx, was talking to his father about 8 o'clock last night across the dining room table when suddenly he wavered, toppled and fell to the floor. Little Max's father picked the boy up and found that his waist was wet with blood.

When the father had hurried Max over to the Alexander avenue police station Max said that the cause of his troubles was an Italian boy in his class at school. Max says that the Italian boy hit him with a spitball when teacher wasn't looking yesterday afternoon and further that when he remonstrated with the Italian boy the spitball shooter said that he would "get hunk" with him.

So when all the children were crowding out of the school at 3 o'clock, according to Max's story, somebody stuck him in the back with either a penknife or an eraser. Whatever it was, Max bled steadily all during dinner and while he talked with his father about his lessons. And when the loss of blood caused weakness Max had toppled and fainted.

Max will get well. But there's a certain Italian boy who, if Max's story is entirely exact, would do well to play hockey for a while. A certain detective named O'Neill is going to the school to-day when the scholars assemble.

Uncle Joe Says He Has Enough Trouble With Our Domestic Relations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21. Speaker Cannon was a caller at the White House to-day. He came while the President was away and left before Mr. Taft got back to the office. As he hurried out of the door he was asked if he didn't consider the potash situation serious.

"Oh, fudge," said the Speaker. "That's our foreign relations. I've got enough trouble with our domestic relations."

DIED SAVING HER JEWELS.

Weird and Interesting Discovery in the Ruins of Pompeii.

SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCH TO THE SUN.

ROME, Dec. 21.—The most interesting discovery for a long time has been made at Pompeii. Workmen who were digging for the foundation of a new building outside the area of the buried city found the body of a woman which had been petrified. Both the hands were full of jewels.

Evidently the woman fled from the eruption that overwhelmed Pompeii, carrying her valuables, and was buried in the downpour of scorific. The jewels are excellently preserved, having been protected from the ashes and lava by the body. They consist of bracelets, necklaces, rings, amulets studded with gems and a pair of earrings, which are probably unique.

They may be altogether the most valuable specimens of ancient jewelry ever discovered. Each earring contains twenty-one perfect pearls set in gold in imitation of a bunch of grapes.

HEGEMAN SPOTS LOBSTERS.

Under 9 Inches, He Swears, and Pushes Suit for Penalties.

John R. Hegeman, Jr., son of the president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and a special deputy game protector, was the prosecuting witness yesterday in the trial of a suit brought by the State Game Commissioner against Fremont Gilloia, a restaurant keeper at 64 West Tenth street, to recover $350 in penalties because Gilloia had in his possession fourteen lobsters less than nine inches long. Two cold storage lobsters measuring eight inches were among the exhibits.

On cross-examination Mr. Hegeman said he knew that as the complaining witness he would receive half the penalty if any is recovered. Counsel for the defendant asked if it was really necessary for the son of the president of an important life insurance company to spend his time looking for lobsters that were shorter than the law allows.

"My father has nothing to do with it," said Mr. Hegeman. "I did this on my own account."

"Isn't it probable that when these lobsters were alive they were of legal length and that they shrank in the cooking?" asked the lawyer.

"I watched two of them being cooked," said Hegeman, "and I noticed that they grew longer in the cooking."

An employee of the Metropolitan Life substantiated Hegeman's testimony concerning the lobsters. Counsel for the defence asked him if the insurance company was paying for his time while he was looking for short lobsters and he said it was.

Positive Evidence Disproves Finger Print Identification in England.

SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCH TO THE SUN.

LONDON, Dec. 21. Finger print identification failed for it is said the first time to-day when a man was charged with murder in the Highgate police court.

The police submitted finger prints to show that the prisoner had been sentenced for another offence some time ago. It was, however, indisputably proved that the accused was then serving in the army, and he was released.

GOOD DEMAND FOR CHRISTMAS BABIES.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 21. Christmas babies are in demand this year.

"No fewer than ten boys and girls have left our home in the last week," the demand for them being influenced by the Christmas spirit," said the matron at the "Children's Home Society" in St. Anthony Park. "People asking for the little folks say that they must have them in their homes by Christmas Day."

"One negro boy left the home this week," being adopted by a well-to-do family."
